

However, my journey has taken me to a not too different field where I still am able to serve and connect with individuals in their most independent area of living. After taking some time off to care for my mother who recently passed away from cancer last year, I have continued in the healthcare field of which she being a nurse and myself passionate about care-giving, guided me to home health. I came to Builders of Hope from a local home health company where I was an aide and a homemaker for over a year.

The mental health field of practice is very familiar to my previous healthcare experiences as I encountered many clients with both mental and physical disabilities. I am compassionate towards those who desire to be seen, heard, and cared for in some of the most difficult situations of their home and community environment. Builders of Hope will provide me the opportunity to grow in my interest and love for working with people of all skill sets and needs. I am very excited to take this next step in my career and looking forward to serving others as they continue taking steps to further reach their own goals of living independently.
